Gov. Clark arrived in town on Wednesday afterno Gov. Clark arrived in town on Wednesday afternoon, and put up at the residence of a friend, in Fifth avenue, where he is now stying. He was induced to visit the city on invitation of the Commissioners of Emigration, to visit the institutions under their charge. Before coming he stipulated that the visit should not be made public, as he wished to personally inspect the public charities without unsecessary parade and ostentation.

At noon yesterday, the party, consisting of Governor Clark, Commissioners Purdy, Kelly, Kennedy and Cum-mings, Hon. C. C. Leigh, Gen. J. J. Chambers, and Major of the press and others, started from the Astor House at noon in carriages, and proceeded to 106th street, where they took boats for Randall's Island. Here they were received by Col. Stearns, the Warden, who conducted them through the grounds, wards, nursery department, &c.

This time honored custom, was disregarded in the present instance, and the water was furnished without the liquor. During the Governer's stay the Randall's Island Light Infantry, composed of nearly four hundred boys, preceded by drums and fifes, passed in review before him. They marched and countermarched, and per-formed a number of extraordinary military managures formed a number of extraordinary military manageures not mentioned by Scott or any other known writer on tactics, which, however, appeared to greatly please themselves, as it certainly did the lookers on. The boys were then marched in to dinner, and the guests followed to see them eat. This performance was highly satisfactory and interesting, though, as some of the boys, with a profound disregard of Chesterdeid's maxims, attempted to sat soup with their fingers, it was slightly disgusting. The Gurl's Infant School was then visited, where the vagrant children sang a song descriptive of the peasures and enjoyments of home, a subject they the p'easures and enjoyments of home, a subject they could sing about with propriety, as they knew nothing had the moral courage to pass a prohibitory liquor law. His heart bled while passing through the institution that morning at seeing the poor children who had been made orphans and paupers by the intemperance of their parents. The demon rum had caused the ravages they had witnessed. He was pleased to hear that the Commissioners had determined to allow no more liquor to be drank on Ward's laiand, and that foul demon would thus be banished from the place. Mr. Leigh was resjoiced at the present prosperity of the noble institutions that now dot our waters.

Mr. Purny then introduced Thurlow Weed, whom he designated as a man known throughout the world as a friend of freedom, &c.

Mr. Wend felt sensibly the compliment just uttered. In view of the prosperity of the institutions around them, he thought it no more than proper to remember those who passed the law organizing the departments. He proposed the health of Senator F. F. Backus, of McDroe, and Irs Harris, of Albany.

Gen. Charrens was called upon, and spoke humorously of a Crabb that never was sown, and a tree that was ever in blossom—the Vice President of the commission, Captain Crabites. He condemned in strong language the spirit that was abroad to impose restrictions on emigration, which he deemed a blessing to the country. After complimenting the two Boards, he closed a pointed speech amidst applause.

Commencement of the General Theological Seminary.

The annual commencement of the General Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church took place yesterday in St. Peter's Church, Twentieth street. There were not more than two hundred persons present, at the utmost, and a large proportion of these were ministers. The services commenced at ten o'clock, Rt. Rev. Dr. Lee, of Iowa; Rt. Rev. of the institution were also present, and took part in the exercises.

Bishop Lee, of Iowa, delivered a sermon appropriate to the occasion, taking his text from Jeremiah, Chap. 23, versus 1 and 2, as follows:—

"We be unto the postors that destroy and scatter the sheep of my pasture, saith the Lord.

"Therefore, thus saith the Lord God of Israel against the partors that feed my people, Ye have scattered my flock and driven them away, and have not visited them: behold, I will visit upon you the evil of your doings, saith the Lord."

The discourse, as the text would indicate, was devoted to an exposition of the sacred duvies of the ministry and the responsibilities which devolved upon all pastors. The Bishop dwelt with particular emphasis upon the duty incumbent upon the clergy of visiting their flocks and becoming personally acquainted with them. By this means they would establish that close communion which should always exist between the ministry and the latty, and be better able to attend to their spiritual wants. In conclusion he made some appropriate remarks to the graduates, after which they received their diplomas from Bishop Donne, to whom they were introduced in due form by the Dean, Dr. Terner.

THE MISTERY PARTIALLY REVEALED—IDENTIFICATION OF THE YOUNG PERMALE—INVESTIGATION
ERFORE THE CORONER—FUNERAL SERVICES OVER

THE DECRASED, &C.
The ivestigation before Coroner Redding and a jury into the circumstances attending the mysterious sui-cide of Horatio N. Gustin and the young female, whose name is ascertained to be Sarah Williams, on Wednes-day morning, was resumed yesterday afternoon in the lovernor's room of the Brooklyn City Hall. The following gentlemen, all residing in the neighborhood where the tragedy was enacted, compose the jury:—

J. R. Westcott,
Isaac Hammond,
John T. Barber,
E. L. White,
John D. Emmons,
Very few persons beside the jury and witnesses were present at the investigation. The interest appeared to lie in the direction of the Adelphi street Episcopa church, where the funeral services over the remains of the young female were being performed.

The whole affair, involved in so much mystery, and which gave rise to so much indignation, was not reveal-which gave rise to so much indignation, was not reveal-ed until yesterday about noon, when by some means the Coroner ascertained that the residents of No. 130 Duams street, New York, would be able to throw some light upon the subject. He thereupon despatched Constable Horton to summou the inmates of the house to appear Horton to summon the immersor the house to appear as witnesses on the investigation.

From the evidence itwas plainly shown that the de-ceased young woman had led a life of doubtful virtue for the past five years, and that the young man had been her friend and companion. Among her effects, which were taken from her late residence, were found a large number of letters and cards from various persons, but the greater proportion were from young Gustin, who assumed the name of Henry Williams. The correspondence had been kept up for several years, and continued, during his residence at Muscatins, Iowa, from which place several of his letters were dated. In one of his pistles, dated New York, he states that he had been

The witnesses being called by the Coroner, came forward and testified as follows:—

Dr. Samuel Boyd sworn —A bout S o'clock yesterday morning I was informed by the coroner that two persons were lying dead at a house in Clermont avenue, near Myrtle; I went to the house designated, and saw the deceased, who were reclining upon a lounge on the back plazza; the body of the female was taken to the dead house; Dr. Grey and his student, Mr. Van Tyne, made the dissection; on opening the body, the presence of prussic acid was plainly perceptible; examinati in were made as to her pregnasoy, and it was found that nothing life that existed; in the afternoon I went to the heuse of the deceased young man, when a similar examination took place, with like results. At the request of a juryman, the coroner read the evidence of Thomas P. Guetin, father of the deceased young man, in which he testified that he never saw the young woman. It was published in yesterday's Heraldo. Hester Benefelt recalled—identified the daguerrectype produced, which was found among the effects of the deceased, as that of Henry Williams alias Horatio N. the deceased, as that of Henry Williams alias Horatio N. Guatin.

It is generally supposed that the unfortunate couple came to the house of the elder Mr. Gustin the evening previous to the tragedy, and were repulsed by some of the family. This treatment is deemed by some as the cause of the suicide, and to establish or controvert it the case was adjourned until 7 o'clock, this (Friday) evening, the family being at the time attending the funeral of young Gustin.

THE PUNERAL OF PHE DECEASED YOUNG PEMALE. The FUNRALL OF FHE DECEASED YOUNG FEMALE,
The funeral of Sarah Williams, one of the victims of the Clermont avenue suicide, took place yesterday afternoon at the Episcopal Church in Adelphi street. The excitement was intense, and long before the appointed hour, which was four o'clock, the street leading to the church was througed with people, and the church and lecture room adjoining were filled almost to suffocation, hundreds not being able to obtain even standing room.
The growth and about the hullding numbered about

2,500 persons.

The remains of the deceased were conveyed to the The remains of the deceased were conveyed to the church from the dead house in a magnificent hearse, drawn by two white horses, under the management of the committee appointed at a meeting of citizens of the Eleventh ward the night previous. The committee consisted of the following gentlemen:—J. G. Schoonraker, Esq., Captain R. W. Call, George Wallace, Alderman Walsh and Gilbert Delevere. The coffin was made of mahogany, highly polished, and lined with white satin. On the lid was a massive siver plate, containing the following inscription within a scroll:—

DIED JUNE 27, 1855.

The corpse was dressed in a handsome white merino shroud, her head being encircled with a wreath of red and white roses.

The expanses of the coffin, ahroud and hearre were a voluntary gift from J. G. Schumaker, Esq.

The coffin was carried into the church, and placed in front of the sitar by the pall bearers, consisting of the committee above named. The Rev. R. J. Walker, pastor of the congregation, then performed that part of the funeral services not forbidden in the ritual to persons who come to death by their own hands. He delivered an appropriate address, detailing the circumstances of the melancholy event, by which two persons had been suddenly cut off, and hurried to the presence of their God. He urged upon the assemblage the virtue of exercising charity one to another, for no one could tall what temptation drove them to their untimely end. We must examine ourselves. Are we not liable to fail? Are our children secure? Can they not be allured from the paths of virtue, and come to an ignominious death? We are all frail beings, and know not the hour in which we may be tempted. Love is a powerful motive—love for ourselves and our fellowmen. And there can be no doubt that the victims of this tragedy ensertained for one another the warmest ties of affection. This is evident from the manner in which they were found when dead, and in death leaning upon one another in affectionate embrace. It is our duty te love one another, and to love that God who created us, above, all others. Every sentiment opposed to Ged ought to be suppressed, for it is idolatry to love anything more than him. Then, my brethree, let us resist temptation, and pray God to give us grace to resist everything that does not come from him. A few years at most will finish our trials and troubles on earth. Then let us run with patience the race that is set before us, and heaven will recompense us for all.

After the services, the coffin was removed to the side-walk in front of the church, where the assembled multitude was permitted to look at the c funeral was going on, and numbered five carriages, containing 14 persons.

ECKNES AND INCIDENTS.

While the people were tooking at the corpse of the weman, the cry of pickpocket was raised in the crowd. The police being on hand, the fellow was collared and conveyed to the station house. He was caught in the act of relieving a woman's pocket of a purse containing $18.

act of relieving a woman's pocket of a purse containing $18.

While the services were being performed in the church, groups of men, women and children were standing outside, discussing the merits of the porties in question. Remarks were, made such as this: "Poor thing, how she must have loved him to die for and with him!" "What a romance this is, how romantic they must have feit!" while the more knowing ones would exclaim, "She was too good for him!" "Why, she supported him." Others were condemning the conduct of his parents refusing to have her remain in their house.

The following is the copy of a placard which was posted upon the gate of the house of Mr. Gustin. It shows the state of feeling in the neighborhood.

"The remains of Mr. Gustin will be buried from the dead house this afternoon at half-past two o'clock."

The meeting was called to order by calling Mr. Geo. Blunt to the chair, and Mr. W. H. Davids officiated as secretary. The object of the meeting was to decide upon some plan of operations which would harmonize the interests of the company. After the formality of opening the meeting, Mr. Abijah Mann came forward and offered the following resolutions:

Resolved. That Edward Whitehouse, Theodore Dehon, adam Norrie, Jos. Gaillard, Jr., and Watts Sherman, are hereby appointed a committee to make arrangements for the issue and sale of a series of bonds of the company, with suitable provisios for a sinking fund, amounting to five hundred thousand dollars; and that the President and directors are hereby requested to apply the proceeds of said bonds to the payment of the floating debt of the company, and of the balance now due Howland & Aspinwall, and to dispense with the commercial agency; and that the President and Board of Directors te, and hereby are, requested to make such appointments as they may deem necessary for the transaction, by the officers and clerks of the company, of all commercial business connected therewith.

Resolved, That the salaries of the officers and clerks needed for the transaction of the business of the company, under the new organ zation, be recommended by the said committee for adoption by the President and Board of Directors.

Resolved, That the President and Board of Directors be requested to continue their efforts to dispose of such portios of the property as in their opinion can be advantageously dispensed with, payable in cash or notes, if at private sale, and on such terms as they may deem most for the interest of the stockholders; or if by public auction, payable in the stockholders of the company.

Resolved, That the President and Board of Directors be requested to apply for a modification of the charter, so as to authorize an increase of the number of directors to nine, and a subdivision of the stock into certificates of $100 each, and for such other modification see they deem neces

Mr. Dzuon followed Mr. Manu, reiterating with that gentleman the desire for harmonious action, and stated this object.

Following these gentlemen were others, who made speeches to the same effect. Upon taking the vote upon the resolutions a call was made for a vote upon each resolution separately. Upon putting the question to the meeting, it was decided that the resolutions should be voted for in the whole.

The above resolutions were then put to the meeting, and unanimously adopted.

Mr. Grankent then accepted the following as a substitute for one he had offered:—

Besolved, That after the adoption of the resolutions this day unanimously passed by this meeting, it is not deemed expedient to adopt the further recommendations or ntained in the first report presented at the last meeting.

Upon this resolution Mr. Aspinwall spoke as fol-lows:—
The pamphlet is most objectionable to practical minds, because it indulges in vague insinuations, and not spebecause it indulges in vague insinuations, and not specific complaints, and general criticisms, without providing remedies. It refers to the absence, at one time, of three directors, without informing you that all had in charge the business of the company, and two were on the line of its operations. It refers to commissions overcharged by Howland & Aspinwall, without specifying to them to what extent, and it promises a saving by abanconing the commercial agency, beyond the considerable amount which such a course will save, and without inciming you that the agency of Mesars. Howland & Aspinwall was authorized by you when you subscribed your stock, and that its relinquishment by them is wholly optional.

We feel that you cannot do so when you find that two hypotheses, equally fictitious, are assumed—viz. that it has been the desire of your directors to accommulate property, and that they are responsible for the low rates of fars.

No foundation is offered for either insinuation, simply because none could be found.

Mr. Gallland, Jun.—Mr. President, I shall also decline serving upon that committee.

Mr. Dhinn—Mr. President, I am also one of that committee established by the resolution just passed to day, and I also shall withdraw my name. And here, Mr. President, I wish to say that we four or five gentlemen here represent four or five hundred thousand dollars in this concern, and we may be feit. I am no lawyer, but I do know that there is such a thing as liquidation and partition, but I do hope we shall not be driven to that. We have acted towards our opponents with liberality. For the purpose of harmony, we voted for the resolutions which they brought in here to-day. These resolutions were passed unanimously. How have they acted in return? They have rejected our report. They have voted down resolutions that I have offered. It is easy to understand this course of action. I hope we shall not be driven to extremities.

Mr. Grinnell —Mr. President: I rise here to say a few words in answer to the gentleman who has just and down. If the gentleman insinuates that there is any collusion here between me and any one cless to oppose him, I throw back the insinuation with indignation in his teeth. I came here ignorant or what the affairs of the company were, till I read your own report, sir (pointing to Mr. Dehon,) and my action has been shaped by that. What does the gentleman mean by partition and liquidation? Does he mean to come here to threater? I hope I misunderstood the gentleman.

Here the cries of "order," "order," put an end to the cebate.

It was moved that the vacancies in the committee, caused by the resignations of Measura. Whitshouse, Dehon, Gaillard and Norrie, be filled by the Directors.—

Mr. Aspinyalla, on behalf of the Directors—Gentlemen, I would ask that the stockholders fill these vacancies.

Mr. Whitshouse.—I move we adjourn.

Cries of "no," "no," "not till the vacancies are provided

The Late Homicide in the Seventh Ward-Ar-Yesterday Capt. Letts, of the Seventh ward police, re

Yesterday Capt. Letts, of the Seventh ward police, received a telegraphic dispatch from Newport, R. L., amounting the arrest of Jacob Mitchell, who, it is alleged, filled his reputed wife by beating and kicking her, at No. 22 Jackson street, about two weeks ago. Since the inquest was held by Coroner Hitton, Mitchell has waded the police, and it was only yesterday that officers Darrow and Duffon, of the Seventh ward, succeeded in capturing him. The accused was employed en board the United States surveying schooner Sunbeam, and it was on the arrival of this vessel at Newport that he was arrested. Mitchell will be conveyed to New York immediately on the charge preferred against him—that of taking the life of his paramour, while in a fit of frenzy, brought on by a too free indulgence in intoxicating liquors.

PAINFUL SUICIDE.—Yesterday Coroner Gamble held an inquest upon the body of a person named John Fick, a gardener by profession, who committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. The decessed, it appears, has been in a very melancholy state of mind for some months past, in consequence of the dulness of business. He was observed several times to be in tears, and during the last ten days was quite moody and sorrowful. Yes terday morning, about 3½ o'clock, he arose from bed for the purpose of visiting his truit house, and when his son went out there to look for him, in a few hours afterwards, he found his parent a lifeless corpse, his throat being cut from ear to ear. In the right hand of decessed was grasped the rasor—the instrument of death—all covered with blood. Dr. Chanteney made an external exmination of the body, and found that the windpipe and carotid arieries had been completely severed. The jury renegree a verdict of death by suicide. Deceased was about 52 years of age, and was long and favorably hnown in the neighborhood of Fifty fourth street and lighth ayeaus, waste he resided for many years.

As I prognosticated, the weary debate, which lasted as many nights, on the prosecution of the war, terminated by the adoption of Barings' amendment to give support to her Majesty's Ministers. The House did not even divide; and so ends that wordy debate, and the delegates who, like snails, had crept out of their shells, have crep back again. Doubtless the recent successes in the See of Azolf and on the Circassian coast told in favor of the of Azoff and on the Circassian coast told in favor of the government. The recent speeches in Parliament distinctly point at the necessity of army reform, and they have given an impetus to the administrative reform movement. A monster meeting was held in Drury Lane theatre, on Wednesday evening, by the Administrative Reform Association, which was attended by a large sprinkling of M. P.'s. Layard was the hero of the night, and abused as usual everything and everybody connected with the government. He takes the head of the movement. He hit Palmerston very hard, and is evident, ly still very sore at the mauling he got not long sizes in Parliament. Some of his observations were cute enough Parliament. Some of his observations were cute enough

It is, however, clear that the abones of our English administration, if clique influence and jobbing have come to a head, will be remedied some way or other.

To-night Layard gets on his legs, in the house of Commons, to bring forward the following motion:—
That this House views with deep and increasing concern the state of the nation, and is of opinion that the manner in which merit and efficiency have been sacrificed, in public appointments, to party and family influences, and to a blind adherence to routine, has given rise to great misfortunes, and threatens to bring discredit upon the national character and to involve the country in grave disasters. Bulwer, the author, has announced the following amendment to the above.—

That this House recommends to the carliest attention of her Majesty's Ministers the necessity of a careful revision of our various official establishments, with a view to simplify and facilitate the transaction of public business, and, by instituting judicious tests of meet, as well as by removing obstructions to its fair promotions and legitimate rewards, to secure to the service of the State the largest available proportion of the energy and intelligence for which the people of this country are distinguished.

Anapa, the most important forcess the Greassian coast—
Anapa, the place which is the scene of this last occurrence, is a fortified town of considerable strength on the eastern side of the bay which terminates in the straits of Yenhale, and at the northern extremity of the Greassian coast. It lies about forty-six miles across the sea from Kertch, fifteen miles south of the mouth of the river Kuban, and twenty-five miles to the northeast of Soudjak Kaleh. Anapa was built by the Turks in 1784, to protect the left bank of the Kuban, and perhaps, in some measure, to supply the less of Anoff as a border forcess. An attempt was made upon it by the Russians as early as 1790, and in 1791 it was taken by assault after a siege of three weeks; but the enuming assault after a siege of three weeks; but the enuming assault after a siege of three weeks; but the ensuing peace again established the line of the Kuban as the Russian frontier. In every successive war between Russia Russian frontier. In every successive war between Russiane, but restored at the peace, until the last great attack directed against it under Prince Menschikoff and Admiral Greig, in the spring of 1528, immediately after the declaration of hostilities. This expedition consisted of eight ships of the line, four frigates, and trenty-one correctes and other ships, carrying about 7,000 troops—an effectual demonstration of the naval preponderance of Russia in the Black Sea. The place was invested, though it was vigorously defended, not only by the Turkals garriaon, but by the Circassian and Tartar cavairy of the plains of the Kuban, and after a siege of thirty-twe days it surrendered to Prince Menschikoff.

It is now occupied by the Circassians. If we glance from the Black Sea to the Baltic, we there find a large allied fleet in the Gulf of Finland, visible from Cronstadt. In fact, Russia, at the present moment, cannot Before Sebastopol there has been severe fighting. The Mamelen has fallen to the French, and the English have taken the quarry batteries. The Russian guns of the Mamelon have been turned against their own ships, which have sought a refuge in Artillery Bay. The sleughter is stated to be fearful—500 Russian priseners, twenty officers, and seventy heavy guns captured. The Malak-hoff Tower was to be assaulted next. Pelissier is showing a tremendous energy, and people are now sanguin of the speedy fall of Sebastopol.

The last protocol of the Vienna Conferences has new been published. That farce is at an end. Austria does not give her support to the Western Powers, and the Riblical axiom, "Those who are not for us are against us," is very applicable to her case. The Austrian army on the Galician frontier is to be reduced, which will enable Russia to employ her troops in Poland elsewhere. As yet, the Baltic fleet has done nothing, and people here are beginning to ask what it is about. What the plans of the admirals are I do not know, but it is clear they have something in view, which will transpire shortly. More gunboats, drawing very little water, have been sent out. John Bull won't be satisfied unless he has Cromatadt. Nous veryons.

Mine. Ristori, an Italian tragic actrees, is making such a sensation at Paris, that Rachel has been roused up by jealousy. Ristori is a fine actrees. I have often seen her, some cipit years since, at the minor thantree of Italy. She is all the rage at Paris. Rachel, says a French writer, has generously offered to play for his tori's benefit, and with still greater magaministy, Ristori has accepted the offer.

Everything in social life here is dragging its alow length along.
